THAT WAS THE
FIRST AREA TO
COLLAPSE FOLLOWING THE DISASTER.

GANANAM

A dramatic scene of a shipwreck. A large, dark, jagged piece of wreckage, possibly a ship's hull, is partially submerged in a turbulent sea. White foam and spray from the crashing waves surround the debris. The sky is overcast and grey. The word "CRASH" is written in a large, white, hand-drawn font across the upper portion of the image.
